

LSE PBS StartUp Challenge 2018

Terms and Conditions

By sending the application you are agreeing to the following terms and conditions:

General Rules

1. The information supplied to us in your application and presentation was, to the best of your knowledge, true and accurate in all material respects.
2. The information supplied to us refers to your idea, project or start-up.
3. You represent that you own all intellectual property in your idea, project and start-up.
4. You accept the ethical rules of the Start-up Challenge of the Polish Economic Forum 2018

Start-up challenge contest

1. All applicants must fulfil the questionnaire to be eligible for the final round of the contest.
2. The LSE Polish Business Society together with independent professionals reserve its right to process the information contained in the applications, assess the applications and select the candidates to the final stage of the contest.
3. To the final stage of the contest LSE Polish Business Society selects 5 candidates/groups. The maximum number of presenters from one group is 2. All candidates/groups are provided with tickets to Polish Economic Forum 2018 and must attend the event to take part in the final stage of the contest.
4. The final contestants must prepare a 5 to 7-minute long presentation and present it to jurors who will choose the winners. We allow the group of 2 to present.
5. To be eligible for the awards candidates will have to agree to the terms and conditions of third parties on whose behalf such awards are provided.

Confidentiality

1. LSE Polish Business Society will not distribute the information contained in this application and will use it solely to assess and select final candidates.

Ethical Rules

LSE Polish Economic Forum is a network of people who trust one another, often solely on the basis of participation in the LSE Polish Economic Forum. The LSE Polish Economic Forum is strong because its members share a set of common values such as integrity, respect and accountability. We believe these are critical traits for participants to have. The continuing strength and value of this network hinges on the trustworthiness of its members. Participants who behave unethically put the reputation of the entire community at risk.

Some examples of ethical behaviour we expect from founders are:

1. Treating co-founders and employees with fairness and respect.
2. Not using misleading, illegal or dishonest sales tactics.
3. Being honest with investors and partners.
4. Not harassing any LSE Polish Economic Forum community member, employees, or anyone else.
5. Keeping off-the-record or confidential information (whether about LSE Polish Economic Forum itself or otherwise) private and secret.
6. Treating emails and other communications shared within the LSE Polish Economic Forum network as confidential, and not to be forwarded to LSE Polish Economic Forum founders, investors, or the press.

7. Not behaving in a way that damages the reputation of his or her idea, project, startup or of LSE Polish Economic Forum.

8. Being honest in the LSE Polish Economic Forum Startup Challenge application and interview process.

9. Keeping your word, including honoring handshake deals.

10. Treating the money invested by investors working with the LSE Polish Economic Forum in your company with the utmost respect, to be used exclusively to further the goals of the company.

11. Generally behaving in an upstanding way.